

FRAME

THE NEXT SPACE

THE POST-PANDEMIC PLAYBOOK

Co-working 3.0: agile, efficient, automated
Dining for the delivery generation
Why restaurants and bars are going dark
Learning from chair man Konstantin Groic
How to revive the shopping mall

ISSUE 135

JUL — AUG 2020

ISSN 1096-4411
00135

ONDARRETA OLA

Making it possible to section out spaces efficiently, Ondarreta's Ola room divider can be used separately or with multiple fittings linked together. Its upholstered structure provides acoustic comfort while an accompanying accessories collection makes the dividers adaptable to any area. Ola was developed by Spanish designer Silvia Ceñal.

ondarreta.com

Alessandro Pardini

MOROSO TABA

A continuation of the design harmony between Alfredo Häberli and Italian brand Moroso, the Taba collection is an eight-piece product family that endorses multifunctionality in private and public spaces alike. It consists of a sofa, two armchairs, a bench and four ottomans. 'When you design sofas and seats, interaction with people must take pride of place,' says Häberli. 'This is why I play with the precision of lines and the poetics of the organic language.'

moroso.it

ACTIU PRISMA

Evoking Scandinavian style, Actiu's Prisma desks – ranging from individual to meeting tables – give way to warm, minimally refined workspaces. Creators Sylvain Carlet and Isern Serra joined Prisma's legs in a pyramidal shape, supplying the finished pieces with a compact, uniform look. What's more, the sleek MFC boards that comprise the furniture have a 0 per cent formaldehyde certification.

actiu.com

André Göttsche